Description

A pair of majestic mid-century Chinese large blue and white porcelain vases.

Chinese blue and white porcelain is a renowned ceramic style that originated during the Tang Dynasty but flourished under the Yuan and Ming Dynasties. It features intricate cobalt-blue designs painted on a white porcelain body, often depicting landscapes, dragons, flowers, and traditional scenes.

This elegant art form combines fine craftsmanship with aesthetic harmony, using high-fired techniques that create durable and luminous pieces. Blue and white porcelain became a major export during the Ming Dynasty, especially to Europe and the Islamic world.

Its timeless beauty and historical significance continue to captivate collectors and scholars worldwide, symbolising China's rich artistic and cultural heritage.
