Description

A stylish and characterful retro 18ct yellow gold ring, hallmarked in Birmingham in 1973. At its centre sits a vivid green peridot, whose fresh, lively colour is beautifully complemented by the warmth of the yellow-gold setting. Sparkling diamond accents provide a refined contrast, catching the light and adding a delicate sense of brilliance to the design.

The ring has the confident, sculptural character associated with 1970s jewellery, balancing colourful gemstone appeal with an elegant gold setting. Peridot's bright green tone gives the piece a distinctive presence, while the diamonds lend a timeless finish that makes it equally suited to everyday wear or a special occasion.

A charming period jewel with clear British hallmarks and a highly wearable combination of rich 18ct gold, vibrant peridot, and diamonds. An excellent choice for collectors of vintage jewellery or anyone seeking an unusual and stylish gemstone ring from the 1970s.
