Description

A very large and highly decorative ceramic table lamp, dating from circa 1960 and finished in a rich copper lustre glaze. Its generous scale and luminous metallic surface give it a striking sculptural presence, making it an ideal statement piece for a console, side table, desk, or bedside setting.

The glaze shifts beautifully with the light, revealing warm tones of copper, bronze, and burnished gold across the ceramic body. This iridescent finish gives the lamp a glamorous mid-century character while retaining the tactile appeal and subtle variation of hand-finished pottery. Its substantial proportions allow it to stand confidently as a decorative object even when unlit.

The lamp has been professionally rewired with black twisted fabric flex, chosen to complement its period character, and has been PAT tested for electrical safety. It is ready to place and enjoy, bringing both atmospheric light and an eye-catching decorative accent to a contemporary or traditional interior.
